

Why use NAPKIN BANDS?

Restaurants make three nasty mistakes with silverware

1. When the guests are seated, removing 1 or 2 extra place settings WITH BARE HANDS
2. When the guests are seated, placing unwrapped cutlery in front of them WITH BARE HANDS
3. When guests are seated and see the silverware on a napkin, sitting on the table, they might think "How long has that place setting been sitting open on this table"

With all the current news about airborne germs and the diseases they cause, wrapping the napkin and silverware with a napkin band shows your guest that you're taking an extra step to keep the tabletop in a safe and sanitary environment

We offer napkin bands in white, 13 stock colors, three stock Mexican and four Christmas stock designs, an "upscale" opaque paper, custom printing, and virtually any size you need. Need a color that we don't stock - call us.

Please note: OVERSEAS SUPPLIERS - Some napkin band suppliers have been importing napkin bands from overseas. We have had direct contact with customers that have purchased these bands and have said to us that some of the bands were not sticking well. Buyer beware! We also have information that some napkin bands coming from overseas may have TOLUENE added to the adhesive strips to help increase the adhesive capability of the bands. TOLUENE is an additive that has been banned in the USA as a Health Hazard. If you buy napkin bands from other suppliers, ask if the bands are coming from overseas and if they are, ask to confirm and verify that there is no TOLUENE used in their adhesive.
